ALL RECORDS BROKEN, QUESTION MARK FLIES ONWARD; UP 134 HOURS

Army's Fokker Airplane
Now Nearing Seventh
Day of Flight.

ENGINE TROUBLE PUTS
BIG VENTURE IN PERIL

Cylinders Miss; Orders
Send Crew to Quarters for Forced Descent.

WIDE-OPEN THROTTLE
CLEAR'S FOUL PLUGS

Fliers Suffer From Cold, Due to Loss of Window; Old Fueling Time Omitted.

Metropolitan Airport, Los Angeles,
Jan. 6 (A.P.)—The 134th hour of sustained flight was clipped off by the Question Mark at 9:26:45 o'clock tonight. At 7:26:45 o'clock tomorrow morning the Army's monoplane will start into the seventh day of flying, if still aloft.

In the endurance test to wear out the ship's name, no answer was in sight as midnight drew near to the question, "how long can five pilots keep the Fokker in the air?"

The engines were idling steadily as the ship circled above San Fernando Valley. The plane had doubled the previous records for sustained flight for heavier-than-air craft, 86 hours and 35 minutes, at 6:19:46 p.m.

Refuel Mark Doubled.

The old refueling record, established by the Belgians, was doubled when the Question Mark had been in the air 120 hours and 14 minutes, at 7:40:04 a.m. today.

The previous record that was doubled by the Question Mark was made six months ago by the German fliers, Johann Richter and Wilhelm Zimmermann.

At night closed in on the big Fokker, swarming in a narrow circle about the aircraft, here, never out of sight of the thousands of spectators gathered to watch the maneuvering.

The clouds that overcast the sky early today were gone this evening and clear air was seen as a boon to the fliers' success tonight.

Motors Show Strain.

For the first time since the monoplane took off here Tuesday morning, the motors began to show appreciable strain last night. Missing cylinders in the three motors with which the plane is powered, threatened to force the plane to earth, and at least once brought from Maj. Carl Spatz, commander of the flight, an order for all members of the crew to take their posts and prepare for the final glide to the airport.

For more than seven hours the ship had kept an elevation of 4,000 feet and within gliding distance of the field, prepared for a forced landing, but shortly after 1 p.m., the ailing engines apparently were readjusted, for the Question Mark took on a heavy load of gasoline in midair and began a more courageous flight which took in the entire San Fernando Valley.

A notation in the log of the plane shortly after midnight last night showed that Capt. Ira Ecker had cleaned the plugs by opening the throttle wide, and thereby had at least postponed a descent. Five refueling contacts were made during the night, averaging about 100 gallons each time.

Cold Wave Experienced.

The small load was considered advisable, since the plane was experiencing difficulty in keeping its altitude. At the refueling early this afternoon, however, 170 gallons were taken aboard and the plane seemed much stronger.

A note dropped by Maj. Spatz asking that his wife be brought to the field was interpreted by her as a warning that the flight was near its end.

A cold wave struck the crew of the Question Mark doubly hard last night, once forcing the plane down from 8,000 feet to 4,000 elevation because a window dropped out yesterday.

The members of the flight command carried on a good-natured banter as to the appearance. Once when the plane seemed to be in the last moments of its epochal trip Maj. Spatz said that when he had had nothing to worry about, but that Capt. Baker and Lieut. Elwood Halverson were all covered with whiskers. They replied that they were a little superstitious, and as they were dressed to stay up they believed they would.

Official Distance in Doubt.

It was officially estimated shortly after noon today that the Question Mark had flown 8,000 miles. What its official distance will be when it finally forced to earth is a matter of some concern to members of the group stationed at Metropolitan Airport. Time spent in flying over unofficial courses such as that in Imperial Valley and the short course around San Fernando adds no distance to the total.

Although the craft must travel at approximately 65 miles an hour to remain aloft, it seemed to observers that his official capacity as welcome to the city.

Without much ado the party sped away for the Hoover home on S street. The family had been reunited at Old Point Comfort early in the morning where Herbert Hoover, Jr., and his wife went aboard the Utah.

Alan, the younger son, wears veteran stripes of the tour and it might be said wound stripes, because as everybody agreed he was one of the gang even to the extent of taking the initiation for crossing the equator. And there were newspaper men who solemnly avowed that there should be a regulation against this ceremony.

No Favorites in Ritual.

It seems that the gobs show no favorites in this ritual and everybody aboard who had not crossed the equator before, were first bathed in tar, touched up with a strok shot of electricity and then catapulted into a pool where there were manhandlers, who were not concerned about questions of rank.

None of the members of the party has as much tan as might be expected, but did have a cosmopolitan bearing that might be likened to that of Mr. Hoover himself.

To those who met them at Old Point Comfort they kept up a steady chatter about "B. A." which seems to be the cosmopolite's way of referring to Bureau men. They went away from here pronouncing themselves just as the rest of us do, but how it is impossible to understand them.

Already there is an increase in the commercial intercourse between the United States and Latin America visited because all the members of the party had bags and trunks laden with everything conceivable, rugs, armadillo vases, candlesticks and what not. Mr. and Mrs. Hoover had their share. Gobs were for two days on the shoulder of the boat to the hotel, most of the time in a driving rain, too.

Party Lands in Fog.

The good ship Utah poked its grey nose into the fog bank before day light, but there was such a downpour on the capes, in fact all the way down the bay, that it did not try to come in until its schedule time, 8 o'clock.

In a very brief while those on shore could see the boat coming through the heavy veil and the first passengers off were hurrying for shore and the train to Washington steamed up and away about 300 yards away. Herbert, Jr., and his wife got off at the boat with L. E. Murphy, Mr. Hoover's personal representative, who had remained here.

The President-elect did not come ashore until 9:30 and by the time he had boarded the train it was 10:04. It was a long, slow trip through the fog straight to Washington in 4 hours and 41 minutes and with but one brief operating stop. It passed through Richmond and Fredericksburg as if they were way stations instead of the former being the new capital of Southern Republicanism.

Throughout the trip Mr. Hoover remained with members of his family, Ambassador Fletcher, who made the trip as an adviser on Latin-American affairs, conspicuously.

There was a slight break in the family council, too, when Mr. Hoover received those newspaper men, who had gone to Old Point to greet him.

Usually on a trip of this kind the members of the party have plenty of grievances, but they were noticeably absent in yesterday's returning group. There was some talk that a censorious attitude had been imposed on the party, but such reports have proved to be untrue but a careful investigation revealed that at worst it was nothing more than the correspondents' objections to the methods of George Barr Baker, who made the trip as director of press communications.

Ned to Limit Dispatches.

A limit had to be set to the news clippings because of radio facilities and that was Baker's idea. Now and then, it seems, he would suggest to a correspondent that this or that not be sent, rather than a challenge to the correspondent's pride.

If there had been any attempt at suppression of any news every one admitted they could have written to their hearts' content at the first port they reached.

Sold down, it appears that the correspondents did not like the idea of anybody on board reading their stories, but the Navy insists that there is an iron-clad regulation that all communications sent from a naval vessel must be looked over, and the skippers of the Utah and Maryland did not have time to do in that and run their respective boats, too.

Mr. Hoover has given up his official residence on Massachusetts avenue. It is understood that Senator-elect Walcott, of Connecticut, is negotiating for it. Tom M. Howard, who is in charge of the working office at the Mayflower Hotel, is here that he will receive the hundreds who are to confer with him during the week.

Absolutely no intimation has come over to the public that the trip with him to any association of men in mind. They have come to believe that the public generally and the political speculators in particular, are in for some big surprises.

Grant to Give Hoover's Views on Inaugural

Questioning a minister's knowledge concerning guns, cruisers and navies, Dr. E. G. Wilkinson, dean of theology of Washington Missionary College, yesterday told a congregation at the Auditorium the "united" aviators' proposal to prohibit churchly interference in legislation. Congress will be forced to hand down to its descendants an impossible situation."

"Lord, help me to forsake heavenly influence for earthly," Wilkinson declared. "If they did, the balance would be destroyed." To neglect the principles laid down in the Bible would be too cold to take a bath. We will bathe the first warm day. Regards from the crew to the gang," Ma Spatz.

If the fog did not clear and permit the resumption of the flight between San Diego and Los Angeles the plane might land with an official speed of less than 10 miles an hour.

KING, BETTER, MOVED FROM HIS SICK ROOM

Ailing British Ruler Enjoys a Brief Change of Scene, It is Revealed.

QUEEN AT ART EXHIBIT

London, Jan. 6 (A.P.)—After seven weeks of intense anxiety, the British nation at last is justified in its quiet confidence that King George is well on the road to recovery. The single bulletin issued today again reported a quiet day for the royal patient, with some improvement in his condition.

It was again issued under the signature of only two physicians, which fact, perhaps more than any other, carries real significance to the general public, which, because of the small amount of information conveyed in the medical bulletin, has been at a loss to determine the number of specialists signing the bulletins and by the movements of the royal family.

The bulletin issued at Buckingham Palace at 10:30 p.m. said simply: "The king had a quiet day and there is some improvement in his majesty's condition." It was signed by Sir Stanley Hewett and Lord Dawson of Penn.

One of the signs of the king's recovery is the sight of his son, Edward, at the window on one occasion today when it is known that his majesty was moved yesterday into an adjoining audience chamber, where he remained for one hour. This was the first time that he had left his sick room during the week of his illness.

Presumably his majesty was only wheeled on his bed into the audience chamber yesterday, but the mere fact of such a brief change of scene from the extreme seclusion of the royal room, to which he has been kept so long, was calculated to have a beneficial moral effect in reviving interest in the life around him.

Another sidelight that the public could appreciate was the visit which Queen Mary made yesterday afternoon for three hours to the Dutch art exhibition at Burlington House. Nearly the whole royal family went with her.

China Foreign Office Not to Change Policy

Shanghai, Jan. 6 (A.P.)—It is understood here that all important members of the foreign service officials today will decide to leave the present policies of Nationalist China unchanged.

It was decided, too, that no action would be required pursuant to the meeting of the national emblem in Moscow, which provided negotiations over the Manchurian questions continued to be conducted in Mukden, capital of that province.

Doctor to Be Witness In His Murder Trial

Chicago, Jan. 6 (U.P.)—Dr. Andrew MacIntosh sentenced to death in the trial for murder in the death of Lovetta Enders, who died following an illegal operation, probably will take the stand in his own defense in the second trial tomorrow.

Considerable interest is attached to his testimony because of the fact the doctor and his wife will stand in the first trial. He won a rehearing in the supreme court.

NATION'S TAX BILL AT $9,169,000,000

National Conference Board's Data Indicates Rates Will Set New High Record.

6-Year-Old Bares Tragedy; Farm Hand and New Auto Are Missing.

ROBBERY MOTIVE, BELIEF

U.S. LEVIES ARE DECLINING

New York, Jan. 6 (N.Y.T.C.)—Taxes collected by the Federal, State and local governments in 1928 will total about $9,169,000,000, according to an estimate made by the National Industrial Conference Board of New York City.

The board also reported today that taxes collected in 1927 totaled $9,074,000,000, the highest amount for any one year in the history of the country to that time.

It is also shown in the report that the new rates will be lower than those established since 1922, when a total of $7,234,000,000, was collected. The previous peak of tax collection was in 1921, with a total of $8,888,000,000, reflecting the extraordinary Federal expenditures which had been made for war purposes.

All the net increase since 1922, however, is due solely to the growing levies of State and local governments, the Federal levies having shown a steady decline.

1929 TO BE BANNER YEAR FOR WORKERS

U. S. Employment Executive Reports That Signs Indicate Business Expansion.

CONFIDENCE IS HELD RIFE

(United Press)

Nineteen-twenty-nine will be a banner year for business and employment, Francis L. Jones, director general of the United States Employment Service, reported to Secretary of Labor Davis yesterday, after a national survey.

"The business world enters into the new year with greater confidence and a better employment basis than it did in 1928," Jones said.

Future investments are expected in the iron and steel industry, which already is healthy.

Reports indicate 1929 will be outstanding in automobile production.

The aircraft industry—newcomer in the ranks of big business—should show great expansion and offer employment opportunities for many skilled workmen.

Road building will start on a tremendous scale when weather conditions permit.

Building construction is to equal and perhaps surpass the 1928 record.

Agreements on labor contracts are regarded as very good.

Reports from the miscellaneous industries give a bright outlook.

"It appears that labor on the whole will be well employed," Jones said, "but there will be some unemployment, particularly among the 'white-collar' classes and manual and unskilled workers."

Virginia's prospects are summarized as follows: "Increased demand for skilled and unskilled labor. Additional textile plants are to be opened by increased truck planting."

Michigan is treated as follows: "Factory employment to show increase. Considerable building and public works program planned."

THE EARLY TARIFF SESSION.

As Mr. Hoover is a man of his word, and as it is now evident that Congress can not enact farm relief legislation, including tariff revision, by March 4, it is a certainty that an extra session will be called early in the spring.

By concentrating its efforts upon farm relief and tariff revision Congress can complete this legislation by July 1 and put an end to conditions that are preventing a large proportion of Americans from getting their share of prosperity.

The Republican party is pledged to do this. President Hoover will hold it to its pledge.

Tariff revision for the purpose of more effectively protecting American manufacturers, agriculture and labor is the duty of the party in power. It will have as a basis for its labors the existing tariff, a Republican protective measure which is satisfactory already in most of its schedules.

The Democratic party is now a party of protection. Its leaders in Congress helped to frame the Houston platform in which the party abandoned its opposition to protection. They can not now obstruct a consistent protective revision without stultifying themselves and their party. Throughout the South a strong protection element will hold these leaders to account. The new Republican South is for the protective tariff. Old Democratic tariff ideas are on the rubbish-heap; and if Democratic leaders do not adopt the new policy of protection they will go on the rubbish-heap also. The new Democratic tariff plank was practically the only subject upon which Smith and anti-Smith Democrats agreed during the campaign. It is the only tie that holds the Democratic party together.

The industries that are now struggling against foreign competition, including the agricultural industry, are awaiting the relief of tariff revision. Time and change have made the present tariff inadequate to present needs. Details showing how particular industries are in need of protection will be brought out in the hearings that begin today. All the information required for intelligent and equitable tariff revision will be available by April 1, and immediately thereafter an extra session will make the necessary changes if the Republican party is faithful to its pledge.

Every American is entitled to equal opportunity under the law. Some Americans are now deprived of equal opportunity to prosper. They will not willingly suffer under this handicap until next winter, merely to suit the convenience of some members of Congress. Included among the Americans who need immediate relief are the farmers who are the backbone of the country. The Republican party will be politically wise as well as honest if it proceeds without delay to equalize the benefits of tariff protection.

WHO IS CHAMPION?

It may be that William Muldoon has thrown some light on the present unsatisfactory pugilistic picture in which there barks no heavyweight champion. Jack Dempsey, says the grand old man of the New York Boxing Commission, is and should be declared the heavyweight champion. With Gene Tunney retired the Manassa Mauler stands out, says Mr. Muldoon, adding an assertion that will be received jubilantly by the millions of Dempsey fans in the country, that the former champion has at least one more great fight in his system.

Since Tunney's retirement several suggestions have been made looking toward the crowning of a new champion. The trouble seems to lie in a lack of suitable contenders. There are boxers aplenty who would accept almost any proposition that would give them a chance to win the championship, but they are all so mediocre that promoters are unwilling to risk the money necessary to stage an elimination tourney in which a new champion could be developed.

Dempsey fans, of whom there are millions, hope that the Muldoon tribute will influence the return of the Manassa Mauler to the ring. He was a popular champion, and he is an equally popular former champion. After all, however, there is only one way to establish his right to the crown. Let a real contender be found with whom to match him, and if Dempsey wins there will be no question as to who is heavyweight champion of the world.

INAUGURAL PLANS.

Although President-elect Hoover would be pleased if he could undertake his duties on March 4 without any ceremony whatever, it can not be doubted that second thought has reminded him that the inauguration of a President is not a personal matter, but a symbol and visible manifestation of the pride of a free Nation in putting into power the man it has chosen to guide its affairs. The people will not be denied a share in the ceremony that signifies the peaceful execution of their will. They will come to the Capital by thousands and tens of thousands, without regard to party, to witness in person the transfer of power and to see the physical evidences of the "Government at Washington."

This popular attendance upon the inauguration of a President should be encouraged and made comfortable in every way, because it intensifies the patriotism of all citizens who come. They find themselves in a glorious city belonging to them, and they develop a stronger sense of responsibility as they realize that they govern the Government.

It is fitting that some showing should be made to them of the national defenses, in the shape of Army, Navy and Marine Corps detachments, warships, air forces, &c.; and all public buildings should be open to them, with plenty of well-informed guides to facilitate their inspection of the civil branches of the Government.

Since it is not practicable for the Government to arrange a public ceremonial or to take care of the visiting citizens, the people of Washington gladly undertake that task. A suitable program has been arranged which will be submitted to Mr. Hoover. No doubt he will appreciate the fact that the inauguration is a national ceremony in which American citizens desire to participate, and that the plans devised by Washington for the entertainment and comfort of the public should have his approval.

PROSPERITY NOT AUTOMATIC.

While the country is boasting over its extraordinary business and industrial activity of the year that has just closed, it is well to remember that 1928 was not without its business failures. Industrial production is estimated to have increased 7 per cent. But commercial insolvencies were 3 per cent greater than in 1927, and the total was the highest in the history of the United States.

Business failures for the year totaled more than 23,000, with liabilities of nearly $500,000,000. In spite of the increase in the number of failures, there was a decrease of 6 per cent in the amount of capital involved. This suggests that the smaller firms are being crowded out, and that the prosperity of the country is based on the large concerns that are engaged in mass production on an efficiency basis. The large number of failures is due largely to increased competition of these huge combinations and to the extension of the chain-store system of merchandising.

There were more business failures last year than during the depression of 1921 and 1922. It appears that during the period of depression, business men used the utmost caution in launching new enterprises and in enforcing economy in maintaining established concerns. The figures indicate that during the present prosperous period there has been less caution and consequent heavier losses. The present movement toward business on a large scale has narrowed the field of opportunity for individual business men. However, big business and efficiency go hand in hand, and it is likely that individuals will have to adjust themselves to the modern plan.

Men who are contemplating entering the fields of business or industry for themselves should not be misled by the idea that prosperity is automatic. The commercial world is extremely exacting upon those who would enter into it and reap large profits. The experience of 23,000 Americans during the past year should point to the necessity of caution in every venture.

BETTER AMERICAN SHIPS.

A new note is injected into the rate war between the Shipping Board and the Cunard Line by an announcement of the Ward Line that it has awarded a contract to the Newport News Shipbuilding Co. for the construction of two palatial liners for service on the New York-Havana run. An expenditure of close to $10,000,000 is involved, and the contract was made possible by the provisions of the Jones-White act. The new ships will embody the latest innovations of ship design. They will be turbo-electrically propelled, affording every luxury, comfort and safety, and will be the fastest ships ever placed in the New York-Havana trade.

The Ward Line plans suggest the only permanent remedy to combat the aggressive tactics of foreign ship operators. The New York-Havana trade during the winter is highly profitable, and it is only natural that ship operators maintaining services that face lean months during the summer should cast envious eyes upon a field that offers them the opportunity of putting surplus equipment into profitable operation. Regular operators in the Havana trade, however, have to depend upon the profitable winter operations to counterbalance losses suffered in the summer. The Cunard company saw an opportunity to capture some of this "gray" and placed the Caronia in New York-Havana service. The Shipping Board, in a sincere desire to protect a peculiarly American route, assigned the President Roosevelt to the Havana service, to be operated in direct sailing-by-sailing competition with the Caronia. But since both ships compete with existing carriers, it is not unlikely that all lines will suffer losses.

The present rate war has an important bearing upon the national merchant marine policy. It is America's intention to keep its flag upon the high seas. Other nations do not look with equanimity upon attempts to wrest from them their present dominant position. New American tonnage, equal to and surpassing in comfort, speed and other attributes that flying the flag of other nations, will serve to capture and hold patronage, both passenger and cargo. The Jones-White act, embodying liberal financial assistance in the form of postal contracts, together with low-interest ship construction loans, holds the hope of the new merchant marine.

INAUGURAL PLANS.

The people will not be denied a share in the ceremony that signifies the peaceful execution of their will. They will come to the Capital by thousands and tens of thousands, without regard to party, to witness in person the transfer of power and to see the physical evidences of the "Government at Washington."

Another dictatorship seems to have resulted in Europe from the breakdown of parliamentary government. King Alexander, of Yugoslavia, following the collapse of the cabinet, has dismissed parliament and suspended the constitution, announcing that no solution of the country's troubles is to be expected from parliament and that he must proceed to make "administrative" changes. Apparently he is about to take the reins of government into his own hands.

One cabinet after another has been set up at Belgrade, only to fall because of the inability of each premier to hold a majority. The parliament is divided into blocs, which seek only a particular object in each case, and which are ready to sacrifice the national interest for the sake of achieving their own ends. The Serbs and their allies do not command a sufficient majority to impose their will upon the recalcitrant Croats, who are bent upon radical measures running all the way from greater autonomy to complete independence. King Alexander has been successful thus far in holding the discordant elements together by parliamentary means, but the breaking point has been reached, and now a direct test of the integrity of the Serb-Croat-Slovene kingdom has come.

In addition to all other troubles, the king is physically feeble, and has recently been directing affairs from his sickbed. It is not generally believed that he has the strength necessary to establish himself as a Mussolini or a Pilsudski, and no strong champion of his cause has yet appeared. But as the occasion usually brings forth the man, there is reason to hope that a patriot will arise who can hold the country together.

STRADIVARI'S SECRET.

In 1738 Antonio Stradivari died, and until several days ago it was believed that he took with him to his grave the secret that enabled him to make violins of such wonderful purity and beauty of tone that they have never since been equaled. Now, however, it is reported that certain letters describing his method of varnishing and treating wood have been discovered by an Italian antique dealer. The papers have been confiscated by the Italian Government, which, upon the formulae of Stradivari, intends to establish the violin industry in Italy.

The musical world will wait and see whether or not the Stradivari formulae in unfamiliar hands will make possible the production of superior instruments. On several occasions it has been reported that his secret processes had been discovered, but no one yet has succeeded in producing an instrument to equal a Stradivarius.

The musical world will wait and see whether or not the Stradivari formulae in unfamiliar hands will make possible the production of superior instruments. On several occasions it has been reported that his secret processes had been discovered, but no one yet has succeeded in producing an instrument to equal a Stradivarius.

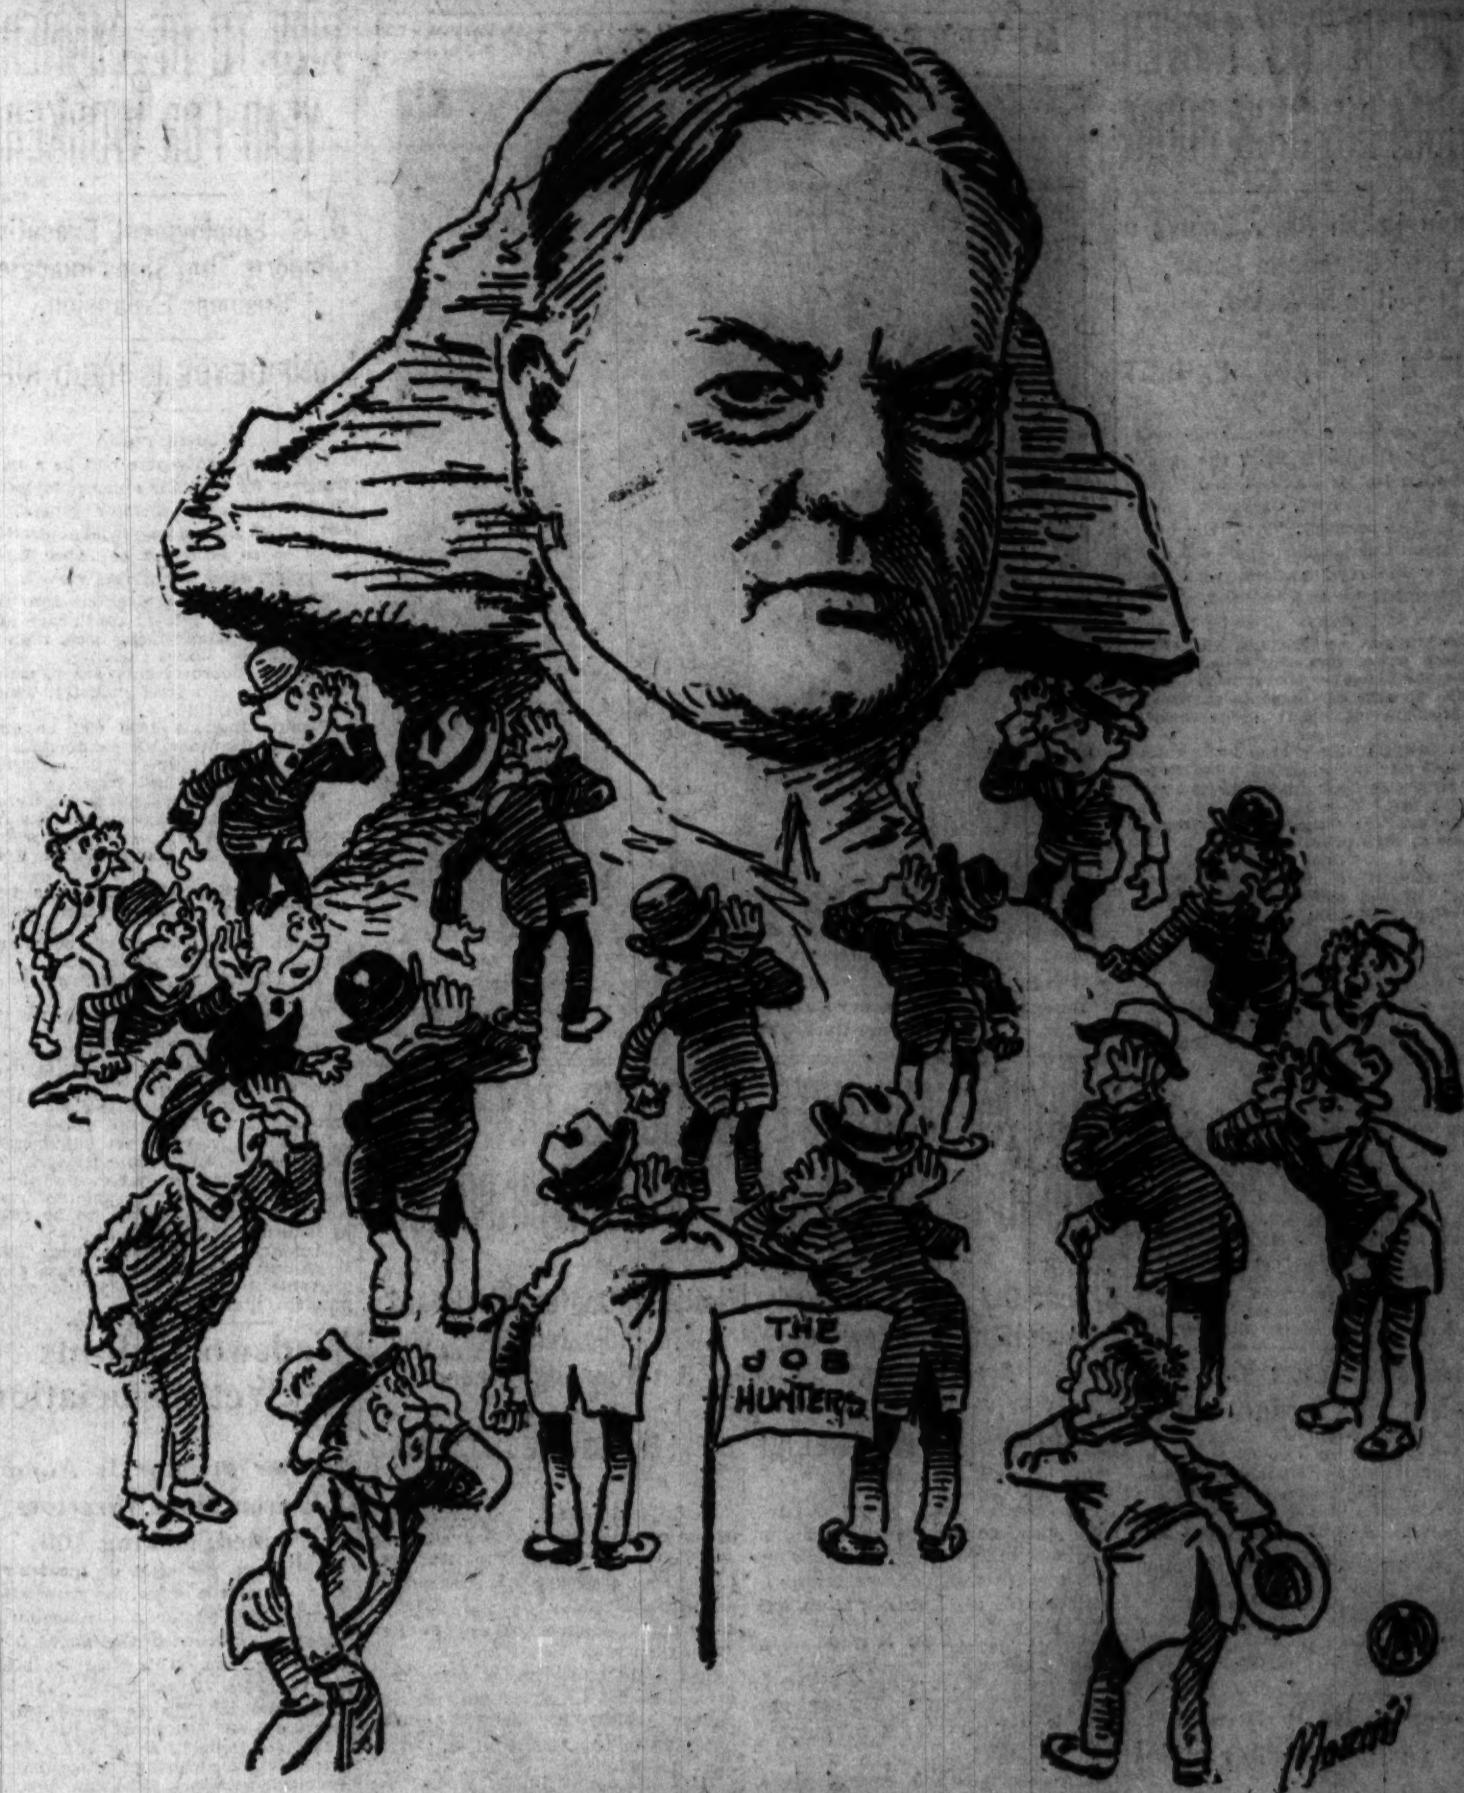

It is to be hoped that Italy will succeed in establishing an industry that will be able to manufacture violins of extraordinary purity and depth of tone. There is an ample market for superior instruments. The genuine Stradivari will have the advantage of 200 years of age over any instruments built today, so there is no reason to fear that modern instruments, no matter how perfect their tone, will ever serve to deprecate the value of those made by the master violin maker of all time.

SALARY LEGISLATION.

The pay-rate bill introduced by Senator Brookhart, and the companion measure introduced by Representative Celler, serve only to confuse the important project of giving justice to Federal employees who are discriminated against. Representative Lehrlbach, whose efforts were largely responsible for the enactment of legislation last session, is preparing a clarifying and corrective measure for early introduction. He is opposed to the Brookhart measure, and has indicated that he will actively fight it.

The Brookhart measure is a duplicate of the one he introduced last session, which was adopted in the Senate by a large majority. At that time the bill would also have passed the House, had it been put to a vote, but the President, in no uncertain terms, let it be known that he would refuse to approve it on the ground that the Treasury could not stand the expense it involved. The Welch bill, a somewhat similar House measure, was opposed by the Executive on similar grounds, and it was not until after it had been amended by Representative Lehrlbach following conferences with the President that a measure was produced that had a fair chance of becoming law. The amended bill was passed by the House. When it reached the Senate it was amended by Mr. Brookhart so that it was the same as his earlier bill, and again it passed. In conference, however, most of Representative Lehrlbach's views prevailed and the measure finally passed.

This law has not proved equitable, and there is a demand for its clarification. The Brookhart measure, and the bill that Representative Lehrlbach is about to introduce, are almost certain to precipitate a fight. In view of the short time remaining and the important measures that must be considered, a fight may lead to a deadlock that would serve to prevent any remedial action. It would be far better for the Government workers if Representative Lehrlbach were put in complete charge of salary-relief legislation, particularly since he is the only man who has made a thorough and detailed study of their needs and who is also familiar with the views of the President. Senator Brookhart, if he is sincere in his desire to aid those who were made victims of unjust discrimination, should come to the support of the bill Mr. Lehrlbach will introduce. That bill probably will have a chance of becoming law.

THE WASHINGTON POST: MONDAY, JANUARY 7, 1929.

Two Women Run for D.A.R. Post of President General

Zest Is Added to Plans for April Election in Filing of Tickets by Ohio and Georgia Units, Boosting Mrs. Hobart and Mrs. Talmadge.

The D. A. R. political pot is bubbling merrily away with activities concerning the triennial elections which will take place at the Continental Congress in Washington in April.

The principal prize is that of president general to succeed Mrs. Alfred J. Broome, who retires from that office after the April congress. In addition to the head of the society, ten national officers and seven vice presidents general.

What adds zest to the race for the present generalship is that two members of the present board of management of the D. A. R., Mrs. Lowell F. Hobart of Cincinnati, and Mrs. Julius Y. Talmadge of Atlanta, Ga., vice president general from Georgia, are leading contestants for that post.

Active campaigns have been opened by their friends and the usual protective claims of their victories are being made.

Formal presentation of the name of Mrs. Lowell F. Hobart of Cincinnati, as a candidate for president general was received in Washington yesterday in an announcement from Mrs. Anna Lucia Backus, State regent of Ohio.

In the statement Mrs. Backus said:

"Mrs. Hobart, as Ohio's first candidate for the office of president general, possesses all the qualifications necessary for success in the office."

To serve with Mrs. Hobart, the following women have been chosen as candidates for the respective offices because of their ability and service.

Each one pledges her continued loyalty to the Constitution of the United States and devotion to the aims and objects of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution.

In a list of candidates running on Mrs. Hobart's ticket are the following women: For chaplain general, Mrs. William Rock Painter, of Missouri; recording secretary general, Mrs. Charles Humphrey Bassell, of Connecticut; corresponding secretary general, Miss Margaret B. Barnett, Pennsylvania; organizing secretary general, Mrs. William A. Becker, New Jersey; treasurer general, Mrs. Harriet Vaughan Bigelow, Indiana; recording secretary general, Mrs. Josiah A. Van Ordel, District of Columbia; historian general, Mrs. Flora Myers Gillentine, Tennessee; reporter general to Smithsonian Institution, Miss Anne M. Lang, Oregon; librarian general, Mrs. Russell Chapman, Magna, Massachusetts; and curatorial general, Mrs. Samuel Jackson Kramer of New York.

In announcing the candidacy of Mrs. Talmadge, the D. A. R. of Georgia called attention to the fact that there never has been a president general from a Southern State despite the fact that the second oldest chapter in the organization is in their own State.

The candidates on Mrs. Talmadge's ticket, as announced yesterday, are Mrs. William B. Burney, of South Carolina, for chaplain general; Mrs. Newton D. Clegg, of New York, for recording secretary general; Mrs. William A. Rodenberg, of Illinois, for corresponding secretary general; Mrs. Henry A. Beck, of Indiana, for organizing secretary general; Mrs. William Wallace, of the District of Columbia, for registrar general; Mrs. Edwin Earl Spark, of Pennsylvania, for historian general; Mrs. Jessie H. Shirve, of California, for reporter general to the Smithsonian Institution; Mrs. Mabel Hoyal A. Smith, of Arizona, for librarian general; and Mrs. Lucius Hill Holland, of Michigan, for curator general.

PRINCESS, BEATEN, TO HAVE OPERATION

Elaine von der Lipp-Lipski Going to New York to Receive Treatment.

LEGAL ACTIONS SETTLED

The Princess Elaine von der Lipp-Lipski, her suit for divorce and one for $100,000 against her sister, Mrs. Gertrude Schroeder, whom she charged with alienation of the prince's affection, settled Saturday night. The count last night said she will leave for New York tonight or tomorrow, to undergo a serious operation on her spine.

Upon her recovery, the princess said she planned to sail for England to complete negotiations with an English company which has offered to place the product of one of her latest inventions on the market. The princess was awarded recently patent rights on three inventions, one of which is a selenium automobile headlight, operated in intensity automatically.

Operation Due to Attack.

The operation, the princess said, will be made in an effort to correct injuries she sustained when she said she was attacked by a man whom she refused to prosecute.

The princess will take to New York with her 4-year-old son, the Prince Nicola Vladimirovitch, whose custody she was awarded under the terms of her divorce decree, awarded her in 1927, but which was held in abeyance pending the settlement of her suit against her sister. Mrs. Schroeder, the princess refused to make known the amount she obtained under the settlement of this suit, but stated it was a "tidy sum."

Courtship to Stay in School.

The Countess Renée de Montasse, daughter of the Countess Claude, a favorite in the former Russian Imperial Court, an adopted daughter, now 7 years old, was awarded custody of her son, mentioned in Mrs. Schroeder's countersuit against the princess, but whose status was settled under the recent termination of all suits in which the princess and her sister were involved. Both will continue to attend private school here, the princess said.

The princess, living in the seclusion of an apartment house which she said she bought recently, last night stated she had settled favorably the litigation incidents to her claim against the estate of Mrs. Lydia A. Stoer, a step-sister.

Upon her return to the United States from England, probably next summer, the princess said she would open negotiations with an American company for the establishment in Washington of a $100,000 laboratory which she will use in the perfection of further inventions.

Primate of England On Road to Recovery

London, Jan. 6 (A.P.)—A bulletin signed by his physician, Dr. Whitehead Reid, this evening indicated that the Most Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of Canterbury, is recovering from his illness of the last few weeks. The bulletin said the archbishop is making a favorable progress toward recovery. As a result, however, of a consultation with Lord Dawson of Penn and Sir Hugh Raby, who also are attending the king in his illness, it has been decided that he must refrain from public engagements for a few weeks until his health and strength have been completely restored.

42 NEW YORK RAIDS MAKE 737 IN WEEK

"Poppa, Here Comes Policeman" Sung as Detective Pays Candy Shop Visit.

Poison Rum Kills 2 More

New York, Jan. 6 (A.P.)—Commissioner Grover A. Whalen's police drive against speakeasies in Greater New York included 42 more raids last night and early today, bringing the total for the week up to 737. More than 100 persons were seized in the night's raiding, 43 customers being arrested in one resort and 18 in another.

A bit of comic relief was injected into one raid in the Bronx. Detective Sasek entered Isaac Struninger's candy shop and asked for a drink, placing his money on the counter. Before Sasek could pour a drink, two comedians came in to eat, only to hear the proprietor's wife warn him by humming: "Poppa, here comes the policemen."

Struninger snatched the bottle and knocked it down, into a trouser's pocket. The detective vaulted the counter and wrested the bottle from the candy man. About 1 inch of fluid remained in the bottle. Struniger was held on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Two deaths from alcoholic poisoning were reported from Bellevue tonight, but the hospital said those received there for treatment from alcohol poisoning was far below the usual total.

The Issue of Liquor Law Enforcement is sharply stated in the following telegrams exchanged between Mr. Durant and Mr. Hearst

Will the Republican Party be put out of Power if it enforces the Law and upholds the Constitution of the United States?

“Yes”-

W. R. HEARST
Donor of $25,000 prize for the best plan to repeal the 18th Amendment.

TELEGRAM to W. C. DURANT:

New York, N. Y.

Jan. 1, 1929

We do not have to make the American people law-abiding. We only have to keep them law-abiding.

And the best way to keep them law-abiding is not to make laws which very large and reputable elements of the community consider unjust, un-American and in violation of their fundamental rights as free citizens.

I do not believe that prohibition ever will be or ever can be enforced, and I DO believe that, if a violent effort is made to enforce it during the next four years by the Republican Administration, the next President of the United States will be a Democrat.

Smith's candidacy proves nothing except that the people did not want SMITH.

Nor would the personal liberty issue have won in this campaign with any candidate.

But after four more years of snooping, spying, keyhole-peeping and interference with fundamental rights and liberties by fanatics and professional busybodies, the country will be ripe for a revolution against un-American conditions of this oppressive and offensive kind.

The opposition to prohibition is not merely by people who want to get drunk.

Prohibition is opposed by such temperance influences as the Church Temperance Society of the Episcopal Church and the Hearst newspapers—I modestly put the Church Temperance Society of the Episcopal Church first. The reason for this opposition is that prohibition is a failure as a temperance measure.

The more we try to enforce it, the greater failure it becomes as a temperance measure, because the only thing we can absolutely prevent traffic in bulky drinkables like wines and beers; and these contain the least amount of alcohol, and are consequently the least harmful.

It never has been possible and never will be possible to prevent traffic in compact and concentrated alcoholic drinks; and even if the traffic could be interfered with, every man could make these in his own cellar if he should want to.

Furthermore, we must not make the mistake of thinking that the country is divided into two classes—drys, who want to make the country bone-dry, and wets, who want to make the country souse-wet.

There is an enormous middle class, which probably is a majority class, who believe in temperance and believe in personal liberty, and realize that temperance can be secured without prohibition, and never can be secured with prohibition.

These people do not want to be ruled by the liquor interests, nor, on the other hand, by the bone-dry fanatics.

Sooner or later they are going to assert themselves, and, personally, I think it will be sooner.

Prohibition has been repudiated by every country which has ever tried it, primarily because it did not accomplish the thing it was supposed to accomplish, and, secondarily, because it became such an unpopular measure that no government could stand up under it, not even firmly entrenched monarchical governments.

Therefore, I think that in offering a prize on how best to enforce prohibition, Mr. Durant is really offering a prize on how best to put the Republican Party out of power.

And I think Mr. Pinchot has actually won the prize, because his plan, being the most un-American and the most obnoxious, will make the Republican Party more unpopular, than any other plan which has been proposed.

I did not mean to say in my previous telegram that education would get the Eighteenth Amendment obeyed.

I meant to say that education would promote a desire for temperance; but any sincere and intelligent desire for temperance will undoubtedly mean the repeal or material modification of the Eighteenth Amendment.

I consider the Eighteenth Amendment not only the most flagrant violation of the basic American principle of personal liberty that has ever been imposed on the American public, but the most complete failure as a temperance measure that has ever been conceived and put into impractical operation.

Therefore, I would like to offer, and hereby do offer, a prize of twenty-five thousand dollars for the best plan to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment and substitute in place of prohibition a more liberal and more American measure, which will secure for the public more genuine temperance, with less offensive interference with the fundamental rights and personal liberties of the citizen.

W. R. Hearst

“No”- W. C. DURANT

Donor of $25,000 prize for the best plan to make the 18th Amendment effective.

TELEGRAM to W. R. HEARST:

San Simeon, California

Jan. 2, 1929

First, let me congratulate you upon your prize offer of $25,000 for the best plan to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment.

Neither you nor any other giant publisher ever performed a more notable service than this contribution of yours to the question: Are the American people ready to give up and admit the failure of this, the greatest experiment ever undertaken by a free people?

Your prize contest furnishes a rallying point for those who are ready to admit defeat and want the Eighteenth Amendment repealed.

My contest furnishes a rallying point for those who are not ready to admit defeat but want an honest attempt made to enforce the law.

You say that in offering a prize on how best to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment “Mr. Durant is really offering a prize on how best to put the Republican Party out of power.”

It will be news to the Republican Party to learn that it will be put out of power by enforcing the highest law of the land, the Constitution.

The Republican Party, as a matter of fact, has just won an unprecedented political victory on a platform whose chief issue was enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The principal appeal of the Democratic candidate was his promise to use his high office to urge a relaxation of the liquor laws. Against that appeal millions of votes were amassed by men and women determined to suffer no concession to the liquor traffic.

You say that you believe that there is an enormous middle class, which probably is a majority class, who believe in temperance and believe in personal liberty and realize that temperance can be secured without prohibition, and never can be secured with prohibition.

In a disgraceful situation such as now confronts this great country of ours we have the right to ask of every intelligent citizen an answer to the following: “Are you for the bootlegger, the speakeasy and law defiance; or are you for the Government, the Constitution and law observance?” With respect to the

It seems to me that the sentiment of the people on this question is expressed by the voting of representatives they send to Congress, where the liquor laws must be modified if at all.

Each succeeding Congress is drier than the last. Out of ninety-six members of the Senate, eighty are dry. Of the 435 members of the House, 329 are dry. Among the cities in the last election which turned from the frank liquor appeal of the Democratic candidate and gave their votes to Herbert Hoover, were Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Los Angeles, Buffalo and Cincinnati.

I cannot believe that, pending repeal, you countenance nullification of part of the Constitution by non-observance and non-enforcement, turning the country over to the organized bootleggers, hijackers, political corruptionists and murder gangs now rampant.

I believe that great good will come out of the public interest and public discussion stimulated by your prize offer. In the strict sense of the word the only possible “plan to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment” is already in existence, embedded in the Constitution of the United States.

It is highly important to know what the people think. My contest brought out part of the answer. I am sure yours will bring more of it.

It is a striking fact that the Eighteenth Amendment was ratified by all but two states. No amendment to the Constitution ever had such a large vote in Congress, was ratified by so many state legislatures, or was ratified in so short a time. We have every reason to think that the American people mean business against the liquor evil and that they mean business still.

For the necessary changes in the enforcement laws we need facts, as President-elect Hoover says. Therefore, I have suggested a Congressional Committee to find out what is the matter with the working of our enforcement laws. I have offered to that Committee the abundant material in our files, contributed by the 23,000-odd contestants who wrote what they thought should be done. No doubt your contest will contribute a similar mine of material.

I hope that your great influence will be used to secure a Congressional investigation.

I am no fanatic dry. I am for law enforcement. If we can't enforce this law I will be with you for its repeal. But first I want an honest effort to induce the decent people to observe it and force the criminal class to obey it.

Now comes Mr. Earl Carroll, the artist, with what he terms a romantic Venetian operetta, "Fiorietta." It occupied most of last evening in that magnificent old playhouse, the National, and sent many a heart away throbbing.

From the lateness of the hour in which an audience was dispatched on its way, it may be judged that "Fiorietta" will be popular. It occupied most of last evening in that magnificent old playhouse, the National, and sent many a heart away throbbing.

So many bright touches have managed to assert themselves that the stars, other than the triumvirate-mentioned, are apt to be left in the shuffle. As one of the highlights of the whole operetta, Mr. Carroll has inserted Miss Dorothy Knapp, as beautiful as they come, to the forefront, and the girl who has dazzled all America with her beauty of face and form now has a chance to spear lines and play a role. She does it all with a promise of fire.

In a marriage ceremony, Earl Carroll has accomplished a great stroke by bringing to the stage all the glorious pomposities that were once associated with the church in medieval times—the end of the first act that makes a stage picture never to be forgotten.

So much has been done to enchant music approach the garden with the assurance of a pleasant evening in the light of the stage.

Indeed, Mr. Carroll in departing from his previous pattern—the out and out girlie show—has attempted, and made good, genuine art in the attempt, what might be termed a modern, neoclassical production; if it is perfect, it probably to link the name of one producer with another. And why not? since, in this comparison, neither will suffer.

It's too gorgeous, and spectacular, and massive, and any one of a number of things, to be handled in a mere cursory review—especially one that must be penned to catch the midnight presses—this work of Earl Carroll deserves far better treatment at the hands of critics than should be reserved only when it is ready to be shown in its completed form. This off-hand, should be about Saturday or Sunday.

Throughout the length and breadth of his operetta, Mr. Carroll has a running story—and comedy. It concerns the eighteenth century as his period and wove round it a colorful tale of dukes and duchesses and counts and what not, all of Venice, and set in the middle of it a fantastical love affair. This has to do with a peasant and a member of the upper strata—and all of the obstacles thrown in the way of true love. When it is known that Chet Broad, erstwhile director of the National, "Theater," took the book and directed it, lovers of the drama, hereabouts will know that the Carroll work fairly wreaks with dramatics. It does, in a marvelous manner, considering all the interlacing plot, and all the many twists to the story.

It happens that three stage celebrities lend their grace and charm and humor to the situations—Mr. Lionel Atwill, Miss Fannie Brice, and Mr. Leon Errol. They are having fun, and the audience is sure to be tickled by the antics of state—for the Venetians appear as a pompous old minister of state, and weaves in and out of the plot, whenever he is wanted to clear up a point or two. He does it all rather gracefully, and, in this case, in such a way that the audience will be pleased.

Those seeking a mystery story in a dirigible and then blow up the dirigible without providing an evening of some entertainment.

That has been done here. Ladies in the audience scream, not without cause, and thus the purpose of the play has been achieved. Those seeking a mystery play will also screen, for a totally different reason.

Practically any one desiring to screen in a theater should have a good time at "One Mile Up." Even those with no such inclination will not sleep through it because a lack of action is not among the authors' faults.

The plot, a love romance, between the young "Jack-Dalton" maniacs, treading close to the boundary between drama and burlesque and frequently they or the actors get a foot over the line. The spectators get the feeling frequently that the excitement is being forced upon them, and the scenes are awful when they are being painted; comedies reflect stands out like a debut sign and then when you are slapped in the face with an authentic thrill that lifts your hair like a scalping knife.

This is the sort of thing that the author of "One Mile Up" has in mind.

This is the sort of thing that the author of "One Mile Up" has in mind.

The plot, a love romance, between the young "Jack-Dalton" maniacs, treading close to the boundary between drama and burlesque and frequently they or the actors get a foot over the line. The spectators get the feeling frequently that the excitement is being forced upon them, and the scenes are awful when they are being painted; comedies reflect stands out like a debut sign and then when you are slapped in the face with an authentic thrill that lifts your hair like a scalping knife.

FAKE SCIENTISTS THREATEN CHURCH, JESUIT DECLARES

Warns Holy Name Societies to Beware of Claims
Denying Christ.

MEN URGED TO FOLLOW,
EARLY HOME TEACHING

Other Rectors Hold Services for Unions, Stressing Need of Faith.

Declaring that false scientists throughout the world are "putting Christianity in the crucible" and trying to explain away belief in God by experiments with test tubes, the Rev. James M. Cotter, S. J., eminent Jesuit pulpit orator, last night sounded a call to men of the Holy Name Society to stand out as exponents of the divinity and the teachings of Jesus Christ, their leader.

" Beware of being carried away in the great swirl of irreligious thought that is issuing from certain educational centers of the world," said Father Cotter, "and remember that if you eliminate God you eliminate conscience, and if you eliminate your conscience the whole fabric of law and order will go to pieces."

Father Cotter addressed the Holy Name men of zone No. 5 in St. Martin's Church, one of five zones churches where feast of the Holy Name of Jesus was observed. Holy Name branches from St. Anthony's, St. John's, St. Francis de Sales', St. Jerome's and the Newman Redeemer Church attended the exercises.

Other Rectors Join in Service.

Solemn benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was given by the pastor of St. Martin's, the Rev. M. J. Riordan, assisted by the Rev. Patrick E. Connolly, rector of St. Anthony's Church, as deacon, and the Rev. Joseph Malloy, rector of St. Francis de Sales' Church as subdeacon. The Rev. Dr. X. Newman, assistant rector of St. Martin's, was master of ceremonies.

The Rev. Dr. George Johnson, professor of education at Catholic University, addressing the men of zone No. 1 at St. Gabriel's Church, stressed the reality of the Holy Name man's love for his God and his family, and the principles upon which the society is based.

He made an eloquent appeal for lofty ideals in the lives of the men to whom he spoke.

The Right Rev. Bishop John McNamara, rector of St. Gabriel's, participated at solemn benediction after the sermon. He was assisted by the Rev. Joseph Moran, of the Shrine of the Sacred Heart, as deacon, and the Rev. Charles Haeneman, of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, as subdeacon. The exercises were attended by Holy Name members from St. Gabriel's, the Nativity, St. John's, Shrine of the Sacred Heart, St. Paul's, St. Thomas' and the Soldiers' Home Chapel.

Speaker From Catholic University.

The Rev. Anspach Zawart, O. M. Cap. of the Capuchin Monastery at Catholic University, delivered the sermon at the Church of St. Mary, Mother of God, for the Holy Name men of zone 2, which included the branches from St. Aloysius, Holy Rosary, St. Name, St. Patrick, Diocesan Commission, St. Dominic and the Church of the Good Shepherd. The Rev. James E. Connell, rector of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, assisted by the pastor of St. Mary's, the Rev. Charles J. Trinkler, in the services.

At St. Stephen's Church the Holy Name branch of that parish was augmented by the branches from Holy Trinity, Epiphany, St. Matthew, Our Lady of Victory, St. Augustine and the Church of the Blessed Sacrament. The Rev. Edward P. McDonnell, rector of St. Stephen's Church, and noted war chaplain, delivered the sermon.

The Rev. Clarence K. Wheeler, rector of Holy Comforter Church, conducted the exercises in that church for the Holy Name men of his own parish and those from St. Joseph, St. Cyprian, Holy Name, St. Francis Xavier, St. Teresa, Our Lady of Perpetual Help and Assumption.

Employment Data
Topic for Meeting

Business Men Will Receive Report on Survey of Economic Changes.

The committee on recent economic changes of the President's Unemployment Conference will meet for two days beginning tomorrow, in the Metropolitan Club, to determine the recent economic shifts in the United States from the facts presented by members of the committee.

The meeting will be attended by leading business men and economists of the country, who comprise the membership of the committee.

Frederick J. Rice, chairman of the thirtieth anniversary celebration committee, will make a report which will be dinner for this celebration, which falls on February 5. The school and the merger committees are also expected to make reports.

When the Sixteenth Street Highlands Civic Association meets tonight in the Sixth Presbyterian Church, its members will bring up the matter of having the sixteenth Street Reservoir transformed into a sunken garden, similar to those found in European countries.

The association for some time has been agitating the proposition and has urged of persuading Congress to make an appropriation in the near future that will bring about this beautification of our rear grounds. Dr. L. J. Baier will speak.

Indignant over the lack of express service in the outlying sections of the District, the committee on public utilities will hold a meeting in the John Greenleaf Whittier School, in which it will urge that the express service be extended.

At present, it was stated, the express company has no boundaries for its service. Persons living outside those boundaries are assessed an additional charge by a subsidiary company that makes the delivery for the express company.

Yeggmen Get $7,000 Booty From Jeweler

J. C. Jubb Was the Victim of Professionals, Police Say.

Jimmying their way into the jewelry shop of Joshua C. Jubb, on the third floor of 817 G street northwest, yeggmen ripped open the steel door and escaped with loot valued at approximately $7,000, it was disclosed yesterday morning.

The robbery, police said, occurred between 5 o'clock Saturday evening, when Jubb closed his office, and a few minutes after midnight, when Detmers discovered the yeggmen waiting until all offices of the building except the bank were closed, shortly after 6 o'clock, before Jimmying the door. Police also believe the job had been planned well in advance and that the burglar outfit had been secreted in the building earlier in the day.

CITIZENS TO DEBATE PARKS AND MERGER

Columbia Heights Association to Hear Clayton; Cramton
Bill Will Be Topic.

The present form of the District government, as compared with that previous to 1911, to be discussed by speakers this afternoon at 4:45 o'clock before the Dupont Circle Citizens Association in the Mayflower Hotel.

Rear Admiral Reginald Fairfax Nicholai, retired, will tell of the electric system prior to 1911, while Dr. William Tindall, for many years secretary of Gov. Sherwood, will speak on the part of the Columbia Association.

The Clayton-Cramton bill, on "Voting Day" in Washington, when Right of Suffrage Prevailed."

After hearing these speakers, the association is expected to launch into a discussion of the Cramton bill for park improvements.

The Columbia Heights Citizens Association, at its meeting tomorrow evening in the Columbia Heights Christian Church, also will consider the Clayton-Cramton bill, while William C. Clayton, chairman of the utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Frederick J. Rice, chairman of the thirtieth anniversary celebration committee, will make a report which will be dinner for this celebration, which falls on February 5. The school and the merger committees are also expected to make reports.

To Install Chiefs

Ministers of Greece and Panama to Be Guests at Exercises.

The Newcomers Club of Washington will give a banquet tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the Carlton Club, at which new officers will be installed.

The Minister of Greece, Charalambos Simopoulos, and the Minister of Panama, Ricardo J. Alfaro, will be guests.

Dr. F. S. Constantine will act as toastmaster. The officers to be installed are: Col. Charles E. Stark Jr., president; Henry F. Sidemann, first vice president; Louis M. Tyler, treasurer; J. B. McPherson, secretary; J. B. Flickinger, Russell F. Freeman, Anthony J. Galaski, Charles R. L. Halley, Charles H. LeFevre and Dr. George E. Trible, members of the board.

Father Knickerbocker At Ball Here Friday

Father Knickerbocker will come to Washington for a frolic Friday evening, the New York State Society having scheduled a fancy dress ball at the Willard Thursday and Friday when members and guests may be fitted.

Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York, is president of the society, and Carlton Van Valkenburg, of Washington, is chairman of the ball committee.
